The track suit

The Teba jacket

The martingale coat

Rooted in the spirit of modern tailoring, there is a shift happening in how men dress – not away from elegance, but toward a more considered version of it. One that makes room for ease without sacrificing refinement, for movement without losing intention.

The Fall & Winter 2026 collection is shaped by that balance. Drawing on enduring menswear traditions while embracing a more contemporary way of dressing, it brings together fabrics from Italy's most renowned mills, lighter constructions, evolved fits and heritage-inspired silhouettes and details that reward a closer look. Craftsmanship remains at the heart of everything – expressed through new models, new textures and an expanded range of personalisation options.

This season's new models – the track suit (p. 18), the Teba jacket (p. 24) and the Nehru collar with button (p. 30) – redefine the boundaries of informal tailoring.

Also new is the Martingale back detail (p. 10). A hallmark of classic overcoat design, the half-belt construction introduces subtle shape and structure to the silhouette. Crafted in Zelander® double-faced fabrics (p. 15), it combines lightweight comfort with a refined appearance. Paired with gauntlet cuffs, it brings a considered sense of craftsmanship and character to outerwear.

With 24 fabrics for suits and 25 for jackets, the collection makes the case for cloth as the foundation of everything, expressed through a palette of warmth, texture and depth (p. 94).

The knitwear edit grows with six new cashmere colours (p. 36), a new double-cable construction, an expanded leisure pants collection (p. 44) and an improved polo collar across all models.

The All-Season Flex collection (p. 84) adds new colours and fabrics across Technical Wool, stretch brushed wool made in Italy by Loro Piana and stretch flannel – built for men who move between moments without compromising on elegance. Selected fabrics are now also available in ties, allowing for effortless tonal and monochrome styling (p. 91).

In our 365 collection, we also expand across shirts (p. 114) and pants with new fabric qualities and colours designed to carry the wardrobe through every season (p. 48). Highlights include indigo-washed stretch cotton denim and performance knit shirting, alongside flannels, stretch cottons and a cotton-cashmere quality for trousers, chinos and 5-pocket pants.

New design options across the collection include a coin pocket with flap (p. 28), a double-breasted shawl closure and lapel (p. 74), and a one-piece Mao collar for shirts (p. 116).

In footwear (p. 56), new constructions and materials continue to expand the offering. A Derby with brogue detailing joins the Contemporary Round last, while the Formal Round last is enriched with the lightweight Blake Light Make construction, alongside new Chelsea and Chukka boots. A new tux sole adds a refined option for eveningwear, while velvet arrives in time for the festive season (p. 77).

Finally, a preview of SS27 provides an early look at what is already taking shape. The new T-shirt developments sit alongside tailored shorts, new footwear models and exclusive fabrics developed for KingsHouse by Zegna and Ferla (p. 130).

This is tailoring built around the way men actually live. Dressed with purpose, worn with ease. Welcome to the Fall/Winter 2026 season.

Cheers to the season ahead!

Outerwear

HERITAGE DETAILS AND MODERN FUNCTIONALITY

Outerwear leaves a lasting impression through its silhouette, its presence and the details that reveal themselves over time. This season introduces thoughtful additions to the coat collection, from heritage-inspired tailoring details to discreet functional innovations. Whether through the introduction of five new Zelander® double-faced fabrics made in Italy by Loro Piana, the sculpted shape of a martingale back or the practicality of a concealed chest pocket, each refinement has been designed to enhance the coat without compromising its essential simplicity.

New for the season, the martingale coat brings a fresh silhouette to the outerwear collection. A nod to the great overcoats of the past, the martingale coat revives a silhouette steeped in heritage. Inspired by traditional military and equestrian styles, it combines enduring design details with a refined, contemporary sensibility. Shown here in an ivory-oatmeal Zelande[®] Double fabric, this martingale coat is crafted from fabric made in Italy by Loro Piana.

Martingale back

Gauntlet cuff

Martingale back with gauntlet cuff

Distinguished by its signature martingale back, the coat introduces subtle shape and structure through a half-belt detail that gently defines the silhouette from behind. Paired with gauntlet cuffs and handmade finishing details, it brings a considered sense of craftsmanship and character to every angle. For a more contemporary expression, the length can be extended to create a longer, more elegant silhouette.

Zelander® Double

Zelander® Double is a double-faced fabric quality made in Italy by Loro Piana. Warm, super-soft and naturally resilient, it combines two layers of merino wool flannel in five sophisticated colour pairings: ivory and oatmeal, light brown and anthracite, chocolate brown and olive green, navy blue and midnight blue, and midnight blue and navy blue. Resistant and gently stretching, it holds its shape through extended wear while remaining entirely comfortable.

Introduced for the martingale overcoat for luxurious comfort and rich visual depth. It is equally well suited to unlined overcoats and informal jackets, where the fabric’s double-faced construction allows its distinctive colour pairing to take centre stage.

The Coat

A clean, modern silhouette – with one new detail

New design option: vertical zip chest pocket. Coming in September, this discreet addition serves a precise purpose. The vertical zip chest pocket brings both accessibility and security to the coat's clean front, keeping essentials close at hand, while preserving the integrity of the silhouette.

The Track Suit

THE ULTIMATE IN MODERN LOUNGEWEAR

Sitting at the intersection of casual comfort and refined elegance, the track jacket is a new addition to the informal model range. Contemporary in its references, easy in its fit and entirely at home in a gentleman's relaxed wardrobe. Worn with the matching drawstring trousers, it becomes a track suit in the truest sense. To complete that pairing, we have introduced a full elastic drawstring waistband and a zip-back pocket as new design options for the trousers.

Sportier collar

Two-way zip

The Track Jacket

The track jacket features a two-way zip and a sportier collar – each detail chosen to support the athletic reference without overstating it.

Available across all suit and jacket fabrics, though we recommend stretch fabrics for the full track suit effect, they carry the silhouette well and wear with the ease the model demands. When it comes to fit, we advise cutting the track jacket about 5 cm shorter than a standard informal jacket, with a slanted side pocket to reinforce the sportier proportion. The track jacket can be combined with all design options available for the informal jacket.

Elastic drawstring

The Track Trousers

In addition, we are introducing three new drawstring configurations for the trouser: a side elastic hidden drawstring, an elastic drawstring and an elastic hidden drawstring. The full options read as more casual; the hidden options maintain a cleaner, more refined silhouette. Or opt for the existing side elastic drawstring for a classic look.

The Teba is a new informal model with deep roots. Originating in Spain as a jacket for hunting and country pursuits, it has long occupied a distinctive place in the wardrobe. Timeless in its proportions and effortless to wear, it bridges formal and casual dressing with ease, pairing naturally with knits, open-collar shirts and T-shirts without ever looking underdressed.

Soft shirt-style collar and notchless lapels

The Teba Collar

Its defining features are an open, soft shirt-style collar and notchless lapels—a cleaner neckline that can be turned up into a high collar when the occasion or the weather calls for it. There is no stand or band, keeping everything light and unstructured around the neck.

Available across all suit and jacket fabrics, the Teba can be combined with the five-button closure and all other design options. For a more functional finish, patch pockets with flaps are a natural choice.

A subtle mark of heritage

Considered character without the fanfare

We're introducing a new coin pocket with a flap – a small detail with a long history. Requiring the kind of craftsmanship associated with truly considered tailoring, it brings subtle character to a trouser without drawing attention to itself. This heritage feature is particularly suited to heavier-weight fabrics, and pairs naturally with high-waisted and single or shallow pleat makes.

The Informal Nehru Jacket

DEFINED BY EASE, DISTINCTION AND A BUTTON CLOSURE

New design option: Nehru collar with button. A new interpretation of the Nehru collar, designed for those who appreciate a cleaner alternative to traditional lapels. Fastening neatly at the neck, it creates a composed silhouette with a distinctly contemporary character. It brings a subtle sense of individuality without drawing unnecessary attention.

The Nehru Collar With Button

The standing collar fastens neatly with a single button, creating a clean and composed neckline. The collar stand is subtly parted at the point of closure, offering ease and comfort around the neck while preserving a sleek silhouette. This collar style pairs perfectly with either a 2.5 or 5-button front closure.

More Nehru Options

Two ways to define the neckline

Narrow Nehru collar

New design option: narrow Nehru collar. A new collar option for the Nehru jacket – narrow, clean and sitting lightly around the neck. The effect is minimalist without being severe: modern in its restraint, elegant in the space it creates. It is a collar that recedes into the garment, allowing the cloth and the cut to speak for themselves. Available with both 2.5-button and 5-button closures.

Contrast collar in Alcantara

New design option: Contrast Nehru collar in Alcantara. For those who prefer the Nehru collar to make a true statement, we are introducing a contrast option in Alcantara. A material that is synonymous with modern luxury in its own right, Alcantara brings a soft, suede-like texture that is lightweight, breathable and durable in equal measure. At the neckline, it creates a sharp but controlled focal point – elevating the Nehru collar from a structural detail to a deliberate design feature.

The Knitwear Edit

SOFTER, RICHER AND MORE CONSIDERED

There is a particular pleasure in getting knitwear right: the weight of it, the way it sits against a collar, the colour that sets the tone. This season's additions are built around that attention to detail: new shades that earn their place in the palette, a cable construction with greater depth and texture, and leisure pants in yarns that make the case for staying in.

A new double cable construction joins the range this season. Where the original cable offers clean, defined texture, the double cable creates something richer and more pronounced. Available in both 100% cashmere and a wool-cashmere blend, it brings added depth and character to the knitwear offering.

Improved polo collar construction.

The polo collar has been refined across all models with a more sartorial appearance and collar points designed to sit neatly under a jacket. A fuller punta stoffa knitting construction adds volume, allowing the collar to drape naturally while maintaining its shape.

At the back, the collar rises slightly above the jacket collar, mirroring the line of a shirt collar while improving stability. Jumping needle construction reinforces the collar, helping it retain a compact structure and creating a subtle AMF-inspired detail that references our tailoring heritage.

Cotton Stretch

THREE WEIGHTS. ONE FOUNDATION.

The new cotton stretch family from the 365 collection has been developed to provide the same refined appearance and everyday comfort throughout the year. Available for suits, chinos and 5-pocket pants, the range spans summer, year-round and winter weights. Due to the specialised nature of these, delivery times are slightly longer than standard.

Cotton cashmere stretch is a winter-weight twill from the 365 collection. Woven from a refined blend of cotton and cashmere, it offers a soft, warm hand with a subtle stretch for everyday comfort.

Available in six colours: off-white, eggshell, sand, tan, pebble grey and black, it brings depth and versatility to a cold-weather wardrobe, balancing structure with ease. (Codes: Cotton 59 - Cotton 065, respectively.)

Informal Shoes

WHERE COMFORT MEETS CRAFTSMANSHIP

The informal collection continues to evolve with new models, refined materials and enhanced comfort. The Contemporary Round range expands with a new Derby featuring brogue detailing, while the sneaker collection welcomes the low-top B, distinguished by its streamlined silhouette and closure seam extending towards the toe. Together with the runners and city loafers, these additions offer a versatile selection that balances modern design with everyday wearability.

The All-Season Flex Collection

YEAR-ROUND PERFORMANCE AND REFINEMENT

Modern life rarely stays in one place. The All-Season Flex collection is built for men who move between moments, climates and occasions without wanting to think too hard about what they're wearing—or compromise on how they look doing it. Every fabric in the collection has been selected for year-round performance, and the range grows this season with new colours and new cloth options across three qualities.

LP Stretch Brushed Wool

Part of the Jersely® line made in Italy by Loro Piana, this fabric combines the comfort of a supple jersey knit with the resilience of a classic weave – and will be available in four new colours: caramel, chocolate brown, steel grey and black. This fabric is chosen for its high-performance stretch, with a flannel-like finish that is refined in appearance and easy in wear.

Refining the Formal Jacket

ENHANCED DETAILS.

Bellow side pockets

New design options

Bellow side pockets. Where formal jackets have traditionally featured flat, decorative pockets, the bellow pocket offers genuine functionality. Expanding to carry without disrupting the jacket's line, it is a natural choice for more casual styles.

Medium flap pocket height. A new 6 cm medium height option is now available for both the straight flap and slanted flap side pockets. Positioned between the existing options, it offers a more balanced proportion across a wider range of jackets.

Suits & Jackets

CLOTH AS CHARACTER

For Fall & Winter 2026, the suit and jacket collections are built around a single conviction: fabric is never incidental. Whether shaping a suit or defining a jacket, cloth determines how a garment moves, holds its silhouette and earns its place through years of wear. Across 24 suit fabrics and 25 jacket fabrics, each fabric has been selected for its character, performance and longevity.

The season's palette is defined by warmth, texture and depth, moving through creamy beiges, rich browns, dusty mauves, deep burgundies and touches of teal. Herringbones, tweeds, brushed alpaca, corduroy and silk blends create tactile yet refined surfaces, offering a considered balance of structure, comfort and visual richness.

Technical wool, woven in a batavia twill, is a cloth from Carlo Barbera that brings together wool, polyamide and Lycra® in a fabric that performs without ever announcing itself, while still feeling and looking like wool. The result is clean and contemporary: crease-resistant, easy to care for and comfortable across all seasons. The presence of polyamide lends a modern edge because the stretch ensures it moves as you do.

Silk, Wool & Cashmere blend

A silk, wool and cashmere blend from Zegna features a rich nepped structure that gives this cloth its distinctive surface – textured yet refined, with a brushed hand-feel and a soft, fluid drape. The combination of silk, wool and cashmere makes it light and comfortable without sacrificing depth. Versatile enough to move between contexts, sophisticated enough to hold its own in any of them. New this season: three glencheck patterns in cedar brown, dusty pink and storm blue.

Corduroy stretch offers quiet assurance to the wearer. Long associated with the unhurried gentleman, it has always carried a sense of considered ease. This cotton corduroy from Pontoglio updates that tradition with the addition of stretch – breathing new comfort into a fabric of real character. Warm and durable, it holds a refined surface that ages well. An existing quality, it arrives this season in four new colours: greige, mauve, teal and Prussian blue.

The Corduroy Shawl Jacket

FORMAL STRUCTURE MEETS THE SOFTNESS OF TEXTURE

New closure and lapel design option: double-breasted with shawl collar. The double-breasted shawl collar is a new closure and lapel option for formal jackets that earns its place through contrast. The shawl collar brings fluidity and calm to the structured symmetry of a double-breasted front. Together, they might lean toward eveningwear, but corduroy pulls it back into daywear. The texture grounds the combination in the unhurried register of fall and winter dressing, making it entirely versatile and made for casual dressing.

Available in 1, 2 or 4-button closures. Shown here in 4-button, in Prussian blue corduroy.

Wool Alpaca Stretch

Wool Alpaca Stretch is built around Ferla’s exacting baby alpaca designation: fibre taken only from the first shearing, and kept strictly separate from all subsequent cuts. Combined with wool and woven into a fine pinstripe, the result is warm, soft, breathable, hypoallergenic and entirely without static. Exceptional in both performance and provenance. New this season in pale pink.

Denim Look

Denim Look provides the structure of denim, realised entirely in wool. Reda’s twill construction captures the authentic appearance of the working cloth while delivering the softness, warmth and fluidity that only wool can offer. Finished with sustainable Roica® stretch and eco-certified materials, it is ideally suited to the informal jacket – and to modern, smart-casual dressing at its most considered.

Jersely®

Jersely® draws on the characteristic elasticity of jersey, balanced by the integrity of a woven structure. Soft and elegant, the stretch flannel is a fabric made in Italy by Loro Piana, and moves in sync with the body. For those who seek both form and comfort of a suit cloth, this is a natural choice.

Wool-Silk Blend

A wool-silk blend by Drago, available in a herringbone, basketweave and glencheck designs. Rendered in varying yarn tones, the fabrics offer real depth and visual richness, with a tridimensional appearance that feels both refined and understated. Wool provides structure and durability, while silk provides breathability and an elevated hand. Well suited to any occasion that calls for considered dressing.

9213 & 9218

Brushed Alpaca-Wool

Brushed Alpaca-Wool from Ferla offers a four-fibre blend with baby alpaca at its heart. Brushed to a luxurious hand, this quality is warm and resistant, soft to the touch and versatile across the season. The anti-static and hypoallergenic properties of alpaca make it as considerate in wear as it is in feel. The standout of the range: a mint green and light grey herringbone.

Wool-Alpaca Stretch

Wool-Alpaca Stretch from Ferla arrives in a hopsack weave: breathable, anti-static, hypoallergenic and supremely comfortable. The open structure of the hopsack allows the fibre's natural qualities to work freely, producing a jacket cloth with natural comfort and genuine softness. The standout of the range: a maroon and ivory houndstooth.

Look 9222 Maroon-ivory stretch wool-alpaca houndstooth Nehru jacket - K10197 ZB Burgundy extra-fine merino turtle neck knit - Cotton 037 Off-white stretch cotton moleskin trousers - SDE20 Chocolate brown suede split toe bluchers

Wool & Silk Panama

Wool & Silk Panama from Carlo Barbera is a weave defined by its double-twisted yarns, producing a cloth with natural stretch and an inherently sophisticated character. Soft and durable, it breathes well and moves naturally with the wearer throughout the day. The Panama gives each colour a subtle depth and vibrancy, expressed this season in deep, warm and softly saturated tones.

Linings

EXPRESSION OF CHARACTER

BL0031 (LP - JY) sand stretch brushed wool twill vest with zip - Fancy 505 faded petrol with dirty martini and green olives

A lining is the detail a client knows is there, even when no one else does. This season's selection spans the quietly personal to the genuinely unexpected.

Fancy 502, Fancy 503, Fancy 504, Fancy 505 & Fancy 506

Fancy linings Five new patterns join the fancy lining range this season, following strong demand. Two mid-century-inspired geometric designs are set against an off-white ground – one with dark sage, one with black and circles. An Art Deco-inspired bamboo and Japanese ibis print brings an illustrative quality to the inside of the jacket, while faded petrol with a dirty martini and green olives offers a darker option, particularly well suited to deeper wedding fabrics. A mixed blue and off-white graphic print drawing on 70s silhouettes and florals completes the selection.

An additional point of personalisation: these linings can also be carried through into a matching or stand-alone vest.

Bemberg linings Espresso brown joins the Bemberg range as a new addition to the 365 collection, as a complementary match to last season's dark brown fabrics.

Here's to a season of craftsmanship,
style and meaningful moments.
